Office premises for rent in factory in Nusle, Prague 4. The revitalized factory, which has been nominated for the Grand Prix 2013 Architecture Prize, is the work of renowned architect Patrick Hoffman. The complex is an attractive blend of authentic industrial architecture with today's standards for administrative buildings.

The four floors can be used either as a single unit or as separate independent floors. The Lower ground floor and ground floor is possible use as offices, and first and second floors, for example, as an atelier with the possibility of a roof gazebo enclosed around an original brick chimney, overlooking the courtyard. The ground floor is illuminated by windows and roof skylights. The floor has different levels, allowing for varied cobbled or grassy terraces – perfect spots for relaxing. Throughout the reconstructed building, high-quality materials and technologies were used - imitation concrete floors (vinyl), aluminum windows, ceramic tiles, recuperation, structured cabling. Energy consumption can be measured independently on each floor. The complex has a lift.
